POST-OFFICE NOTICES

Attention is invited to the following particulars on the subject of Local Delivery:-LOCAL DELIVERY. -- No delivery is attempted on board Ship, at the Peak, Kowloon, Aberdsen, &c., nor at any private house (even though named in the address) when there is a place of business nearer, at which delivery can be effected

(Postal Guide, par. 159). The above Regulation is not new, but has been the invariable rule of the Post Office for many years. Considerable efforts have been made to secure its being generally understood. To prevent, however, if possible, any further disappointment in the matter, it will appear permanently on the Mail Lists issued twice every

When Correspondence has been mis-sent or delayed (both of which are liable to happen occasionally) all that the addressee need do is to note on the cover. Sent to ----, or Received at 7 p.m., or as the case may be, and forward it, without any other writing whatever, to the Postmaster-General. This should be acted on the first time cause of complaint occurs; it is a mistake to let such matters pass for fear of giving trouble, a course which generally gives to it as one of the fingst productions of the English me for years. f it was first shown to me when a young deal to know who wrote it, but never have been able

Oh! why should the spirit of mortal be proud? Like a swift-flitting meteor, a fast-flying cloud, A flash of the lightning, a break of the wave, Man passes from life to his rest in the grave. The leaves of the oak and the willow shall fade, Be scatter'd around and together be laid; And the young and the old, and the low and the high Debull moulder to dust and together shall dis. The child that a mother attended and loved, The mother that infant's affection who proved, The husband that mother and infant who blessed, Each, all, are away to their dwellings of rest. The maid on whose cheek, on whose brow, in whose eye Shone beauty and pleasure, her triumphs are by; And the memory of those who have loved her and praised. Are alike from the minds of the living erased, The hand of the king that the scepter bath borne, The brow of the priest that the miter hath worn. The eye of the sage, and the heart of the brave, Are hidden and lost in the depths of the grave. The peasant whose lot was to sow and to reap. The herdsman who climb'd with his goats to the steer The begger who wander'd in search of his bread, Have faded away like the grass that we troad.

The saint who enjoy'd the communion of heaven, The sinner who dared to remain unforgiven. The wise and the foolish, the guilty and just, Have quietly mingled their bones in the dust. So the multitude goes, like the fewer and the wood. That wither away to let others succeed; So the multitude comes, even those we hahold, To repeat every tale that have often been told, For we are the same our fathers have been :

We drink the same stream, and we feel the same sun And run the same course that our fathers have run. would shrink : To the life we are clinging to, they, too, would cling ; But it speeds from the earth like a bird on the wing. They leved, but their story we cannot unfold ; They scorned, but the heart of the haughty is cold;

We see the same sights that our fathers have seen.

They grieved, but no wall from their slumbers will come They joy'd, but the voice of their gladness is dumb. They died-ay! they died; and we thinge that are now Who walk on the turf that lies over their brow. Who make in their dwellings a transient abodo. Meet the changes they met on their pilgrimage road. Yes, hope and despondence, and pleasure and pain, Are mingled together in sunshine and rain; And the smile and the toar, the song and the dirge,

Still follow each other, like surge upon surge. 'Tie the wink of an eye, 'tie the draught of a breath, From the blossom of health to the paleness of death, From the gilded saloon to the hier and the shrond-Oh! why should the spirit of mortal be proud?
